Alternative To Showdown Foreseen As Increase In Power of U. S., Allies

Soviet Possession of A-Bomb Ends Principle of Power Balance

Following is the second of three articles by a former war correspondent who has just completed a survey tour of Western capitals and reports that Atlantic Pact military leaders believe that a "year of decision" with Russia is almost at hand. This article deals with the lineup of nations in the world struggle for power as seen by these military strategists.

By Lee Van Atta
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(INS)—In four precarious years of touch-and-go peace, the United States has spent tens of millions of dollars to restore the economy of its allied partners and democracy-minded friends abroad.

During that same period, Russia has spent virtually nothing on world recovery and has studiously absorbed or forced more nations into the Soviet fold than were brought under the military-political influence of Hitler Germany.

Should Russia suddenly relax its aggressive military-political drive against virtually every nation on the globe, world peace would be insured for years.

Should the United States reverse what might be called its "survival policy" against continued Russian pressure, the same might be true.

Neither is expected by the leaders of the western world military planning.

Experts in Washington, London and Paris with whom this correspondent conferred agree that the Soviets still hold today the initiative they seized after World War II, and have retained with brief exceptions while they let the rest of the world digest Russian acquisition of various satellite nations.

The alternative to a showdown with the democracies is foreseen by military planners as an increase in power by the United States and its allies—an increase so great that Russia will hesitate to risk a match of military strength.

But it is the considered opinion of many allied leaders today that announced Russian possession of the atomic bomb has disrupted the balance of power maintained during the U. S. monopoly and in the Soviet mind has restored to Russia the

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

President Truman sent to Congress yesterday his third consecutive unbalanced budget. He recommended expenditures of $42,439,000,000 in the 1951 fiscal year, and estimated revenues at $37,306,000,000, leaving an indicated deficit of $5,133,000,000. Cuts in "war and peace" items totaling $1,778,000,000 were partly offset by increases in domestic welfare programs. The President called it "an honest budget" and said he would submit tax measures to apply against the deficit.

To keep the country in "relative military readiness" as a force for world peace, the President proposed a defense budget of $13,000,000,000, nearly one-third of the total. The Army would be continued on a ten-division basis, but with fewer men; the Air Force would remain at 48 combat groups, with about the same personnel, but the Navy would be cut both in combat craft and in men. For the Atomic Energy Commission Mr. Truman asked $817,000,000 to increase production of the atomic bomb and "new and improved" weapons.

The President asked a total of $4,711,000,000 for the conduct of foreign affairs, of which $3,100,000,000 would be for the Marshall Plan. Although the President brought the new budget below that of the

PENNSBURY BOARD SEEKING MORE SPACE

Committee of Three Named To Investigate Available Space for Next Year

MAY DOUBLE SESSIONS

YARDLEY, Jan. 10.—A three-member committee was named last night at a meeting of the Pennsbury joint school board to investigate available building space in the school districts that can be used to accommodate the overflow of students expected in next year's enrollment.

Its members are James Doheny, chairman; Mack Scott and Mrs. Mariette Brocklebank. If they are successful in finding space the normal program of single sessions for students from grades 7 to 12 will be followed.

Otherwise, a proposed double-session system may be put into effect in which some students from grades 7 to 12 will attend morning sessions while the remaining pupils will attend afternoon sessions. Each student will average about 200 minutes a week in the classroom.

The board was notified that the State Highway Department has approved a new bus stop located along the highway and the routes which buses of the Pennsbury schools use.

A recommendation was made that all members of the board, all faculty members and employees working for the school system be covered by liability insurance. The board will give the matter further study.

JAMES M. TODD, ANDALUSIA, KILLED ON LINCOLN HIGHWAY AT PENNDEL EARLY TODAY; VEHICLE DEMOLISHED

Police Say Station Wagon He Was Driving Struck Rear Wheel of Tractor-Trailer — Third Vehicle Involved — Skull of Bucks Countian Is Crushed

PENNDEL, Jan. 10.—An Andalusia resident met instant death on the Lincoln Highway here at 2:30 this morning, when the station wagon he was driving was involved in a crash with a tractor-trailer and another truck.

The dead: James M. Todd, 124 Walnut avenue, Andalusia, husband of Pauline Todd, skull crushed.

This adds to the total of the large number killed on the two-mile section of the Lincoln Highway known as the "death trap."

The body of Todd was removed to the Faust funeral home, Hulmeville, and efforts were being made by officials throughout the morning to contact Todd's wife who is said to be visiting at Altoona. Efforts to contact his home at Andalusia proved of no avail.

Todd was travelling west on the Lincoln highway in this borough when the tragedy occurred. It is believed he was enroute to his home at the time. He was an employee of the SKF Industries, Inc., Philadelphia.

According to state police of Langhorne barracks, Todd's station wagon, enroute west on the highway, struck the left rear wheel of a tractor-trailer, travelling east, and operated by Richard Moore, of Newburgh, N. Y. Another truck was also involved in the crash, this also travelling east and being driven by James Lemming, of Jamesburg, N. J. The front bumper of the smaller truck was somewhat damaged. The two truck drivers escaped injury.

Todd's station wagon was demolished, police say. Officers Dane and Thomas investigated; and Bucks County Coroner J. Alfred Rigby, Cornwells Heights, issued a certificate giving cause of death.

STORMY SESSION AT HULMEVILLE COUNCIL

Dog Question Brings Many Comments From Various Councilmen

BODY IS REORGANIZED

HULMEVILLE, Jan. 10.—Hulmeville borough council had a busy time at its reorganization session last evening, and things became somewhat stormy for a time as the matter of dealing with residents who fail to keep dogs under control was thrashed over.

Old business was transacted, then Justice of the Peace George Zarr administered the oath of office to Burgess Leon R. Comly, who was re-elected to that post in the fall. Burgess Comly swore in as councilmen George Bliger, Fred Bunting and Orville Morris. The latter was re-appointed last evening for a four-year term, Samuel J. Illick, who was high man on the ticket at November election not assuming his post as councilman, due to moving from the borough. Morris had rounded out Illick's term last month.

Council went on record as requesting that the borough treasurer, Miss Grace H. Illick, attend council sessions. The borough body also is sending to the tax collector, George M. Dicken, request for list of unpaid taxes by date of next meeting. Under new legislation the tax collector is administered the oath of office by the burgess, and decision equality it lacked between 1945 and 1949.

SOVIETS RETAIN INITIATIVE Seized After World War

The billions of dollars invested by the U. S. in Europe and Asia, which were aimed at world recovery as a primary motive and at military-economic cushioning as a secondary motive, have produced widespread results.
But the cushioning, militarily, which was hoped for as a big product of world economic recovery is held to be valid no longer. Soviet possession of the atomic bomb, in the opinion of many allied planners, ended for all time the historic principles of balances of power.
These balances, in centuries past, enabled the senior partner time to prepare for victory while the junior partners—financially and militarily incapable of doing so—aided victory by stalling the enemy.
If war should come our military planners are working on the theory that the U. S. is first priority on the Soviet target list. With this nation's population and industrial centers levelled or at least neutralized, with communications severed and with a populace even partly demoralized by A-bombings, Russia would be in a position to move for weeks and perhaps months with relative freedom.
It is believed, however, that Russia will force the year of decision—with atomic power—only when and if it feels it can attain that objective.
In the interim, and despite strong U. S. economic assistance, the world picture is anything but encouraging. Here is a timetable, subject to any sharp change in U. S. policy, which military strategists envision as the trend for the next few months:
The Far East: China gone, Formosa next on the Chinese Communist list. French Indo-China seenawing and Siam in line for heavy internal and external Soviet pressure.
India, Australia, New Zealand and Malaya are regarded as fairly safe for the time being from Communist pressure.
The Philippines are considered safe from the Communists at present but it is generally believed that Communist pressure there will be stepped up if and when the Communists gain control of Formosa.
Japan is considered safe from a Communist drive only so long as Gen. of the Army Douglas MacArthur and his U. S. occupation forces continue to direct and implement the development of a democratic government and economy of that nation.
No one in Washington or Europe cares to predict the probable course of events in the Netherlands Indies. It is felt to be on the "let's not lose hope" list rather than positively leaning toward either side.
Hong Kong, due to avowed British determination to maintain the island entry to China even at the risk and cost of a Far Eastern duplicate of the Berlin a'flirt, is expected to hold.
Europe: All nations outside of the Iron Curtain today are considered safe, but only so long as U. S. dollars, military support and technical aid continue to flow in. Russia is believed to have relaxed its two-year-strong pressure on western countries while concentration is given to tightening the Soviet hold on the Far East.
The trouble spot continues to be Yugoslavia where it is generally conceded Marshal Tito, if he survives attempted assassination, is in for a rough time of "people's uprisings"—the people to be provided by some nation other than Yugoslavia.
The Middle East, South America and Africa are expected to feel the constant pressure of Soviet-inspired maneuvers aimed at inflaming local populations. No large scale moves are anticipated.
The grand Soviet strategy at the moment, in the best judgment of those who must daily study that strategy and how to combat it, is this:
Russia to concentrate on seizing "the loot of the world" in the Far East and to consolidate it; acquiring at the same time an atomic stockpile and the building of a strategic air arm to carry that stockpile.
If the Soviets decide to make an all-out decisive bid for world control, it is felt that the surest way they can count on getting the rest of Europe and that part of the world not yet Sovietized to fall in with the Communist grand plan will be through the destruction, however temporary, of the power which today supports all powers fighting Communism: the United States.
(Tomorrow: What the United States needs for its defense if war comes.)

STILL NO EMERGENCY

Coal stocks have continued to dwindle as John L. Lewis has stood by his order instructing the coal miners to work only three days a week. The stipulation has become so critical that the Interstate Commerce Commission has stepped in to conserve the remaining coal above ground.
By decree of the commission, all railroads with less than 25 days' supply of coal on hand have been forced to cut their coal-burning passenger service by one-third. That's a sharp cut. The cut last fall, when the strike was in full force, was only 25 per cent. It seems a fair inference that the problem is worse now than it was then.
In any event, the commission's order has brought inconvenience and possible loss to the public, not to mention that train crews will be thrown out of work and railroads will lose revenue. But the order does not mean that the nation is either in an emergency or facing one, however—in President Truman's estimation, that is. He indicated again on the day the commission's order was issued that he does not contemplate action to get more coal mined.
The President could act if he decided that an emergency exists. Under the Taft-Hartley Act, a strike can be enjoined for 80 days by a court if it endangers the public safety or health. Should the President ask for such an injunction and get it, coal production would be resumed and the present artificial stringency would soon disappear.
But he has done nothing, although many Americans are suffering from the effects of the game Lewis is playing.
Meanwhile the mine operators have decided not to wait any longer for presidential action. They have now set up an almost solid front in asking the National Labor Relations Board to hold that Lewis has violated the law by refusing to bargain in good faith. They seek a finding to the effect that he has been guilty of unfair labor practices—and an order sending the men back to work full time. It is the best they can do as long as the President refuses to be governed by the plain facts.

A man who had been locked up for 36 years as criminally insane was let out recently. At the age of 60, he took one look at the world he had last seen when he was 24. He liked it.
Then he took a second look and began to wonder whether he wouldn't be better off in the comparative sanity of his cell.
Thirty-six years ago, he admits, the world outside was saner than he was. Now he isn't sure their positions haven't been reversed.

Safe Ways of Letting Off Steam

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.
DID you ever go around with hurt feelings or feelings of anger or fear pent up inside of you for a long, long while and wonder why you had felt and acted as you had toward other persons, even toward your own child? Well, children whether two or fifteen, may have such feelings shut up inside of them and these feelings may cause these children to do all sorts of things considered naughty or intolerable by their parents or other adults.
This matter is forcefully brought to our attention by Dr. Dorothy Baruch, in her recent book, "Newer Ways in Discipline" and her pamphlet, "How To Discipline Your Child," based on it, published by the Public Affairs Committee, New York City.
Dr. Baruch states how important it is "for parents in the home and teachers in the school to help children learn to handle their bad feelings, not to let them become hidden so that they pop out, maybe years later, in disguised and hurtful ways."

Emphasizes Love

On the preventive side she emphasizes love. "The best way to give a child of any age enough love is really to love him," she says. "To convince him we love him, we must have good feelings inside ourselves about him. Make-believe doesn't work. He'll see through it." She urges us to watch him develop and listen to him sympathetically, admit our own feelings when they're ugly, help him enjoy achievement and celebrate his successes.
All these constructive features have been emphasized in this column over the years.
Then Dr. Baruch makes much about helping the child admit his bad feelings. With her objectives here I also could agree but some conscientious mothers, taking her at her word, may do a lot of senseless or harmful talking, especially to the young child.

Help a Child

Nor could we disagree in principle with Dr. Baruch when she says: "When we help a child to steer his bad feelings out through acceptable action—pathways, he becomes more willing to give up the unacceptable action—pathways." And in some instances, when a tot violently kicks his mother it might be quite wholesome and effective to suggest that he imagine a pillow or a rag doll is his mommy and that he pinch and kick it as much as he likes.
But if a mother supposes that when he pinches, bites or kicks his mother, other children or adults, he is always doing so because of some powerful ugly pent-up feeling, she is losing perspective and not facing reality. No account is taken of the habit element. Just imagine the average mother turning a youngster to harming some object every time he is inclined to hurt a pet, playmate, adult or even a toy. Wouldn't it take a lot of dolls and pillows? And what of the youngster's practice at destruction?

What has happened, it seems to me, is that Dr. Baruch and others who hail this "new way of discipline" as the key to all discipline, have generalized from a few extreme clinical cases and given the impression that there are to be no restraints, especially physical restraints. They don't write of the everyday child in the everyday home.

Nevertheless, Dr. Baruch and others of her school of thinking have helped us parents give more careful thought to possible ways of winning the child's cooperation in a happy family atmosphere. I hope you read her books.

Spring Model Meets Announced To 'Modeleers'

A large attendance marked last week's Aeromodelers meeting, Wednesday when "movies" in color of a large model 'plane contest were shown.
Model meets already sanctioned for spring were announced. The first one will be the 5th annual model flying fair at Bethpage, L. I., N. Y. Last year three members competed there for $10,000 in prizes. High performance speed models were taken to the meeting by David Baker and James VanSant, Jr. The latter's model featured a fuselage constructed of aluminum alloy, with which he hopes to attain speeds in excess of 145 m.p.h. His best speed to date is 137 m.p.h.
Model flying sessions during the holidays brought forth many new models to be test-flown. Donald Moyer flew a twin engine "Trixter"; John Longbottom, William Rasmussen and James VanSant, Jr. flew new team racers; and Norman Leuschel flew a class AA free flight model that would climb several hundred feet in the air.

There will be no Aeromodelers meeting on Jan. 11th. The next meeting will be on Jan. 18th. A general business meeting will be held and door prizes given. There will be model flying sessions each Sunday afternoon on Wilson field until the ground at the model airport becomes dry enough to use.

IMPROVED HABITAT AND COVER MEANS IMPROVED HUNTING

WARRINGTON, Jan. 10 — "The real answer to improved hunting conditions in Pennsylvania is improved game habitat and good cover, and the Pennsylvania Game Commission is working its heart and soul out to produce this condition on State Game Lands, and is encouraging this practice on other privately-owned lands throughout the Commonwealth," Robert D. Reed, Director of Public Relations of the Commission, told delegates of the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs when he addressed the annual meeting of this organization here last evening.

Pointing out that although the total amount of lands on which we hunt have not increased in acreage, yet the number of hunters in Pennsylvania today is almost one million men, compared with just a few thousand men fifty years ago, Reed pointed out that "gun pressure today is terrific, and Pennsylvania has about one-eleventh of all the gunners in the United States."

"In Pennsylvania today we have more game than in the days of its founders," the speaker said. "There were no quail in those early days, no pheasants, very, very few deer and the beaver was extinct. Wise management and replacements have made this change, and continued wise soil use will certainly improve conditions even more," Reed concluded.

Morris Stewart, Game Commission supervisor of all Commission personnel in the eight-county district of the southeastern part of the Commonwealth, urged sportsmen to co-operate in the Game Commission's programs to insure continued hunting in this State. Admitting that mistakes have been made, Stewart emphasized that frank and sincere discussions of problems mutual to the sportsmen and the Game Commission would go a long way towards insuring the kind of program that sportsmen desire.

Two other game protectors of Bucks County, Edwin Flexler and Clarence Mumbauer, were introduced to the approximate 100 delegates and guests assembled for the banquet meeting. Thomas D. Frye, executive director of the Game Commission, was not able to be present because of illness. State Fish Warden Harry Cole, Norristown, was also a guest.

President Charles Wetherill, Doylestown, opened the meeting with an official greeting to delegates and guests. Edward T. Balderston, Morrisville, acted as master of ceremonies. John G. Fetterhoff, Buckingham, was program chairman. Following the roast chicken dinner and introduction of featured guests, the group enjoyed three reels of good outdoor movies.

The following clubs were represented: Bristol, Bucks County, Conestoga, Delaware Valley, Edgely, Huntingdon Valley, Mount Pleasant, Morrisville, New Hope, Newtown, Newportville Rod & Gun, Newportville Fish & Game, Pottsville, Penna Manor, Springtown, Tru-Sport, and Cutchogue.

ter wraps; also several window panes were repaired.

Many children of Maple Shade School took to school their new Christmas toys and dolls to share with others in their classrooms. The number was great and the variety of wide range and description.

Charles Krause, of grade one, had the misfortune to break his arm while playing at home during the holidays.

Grade four, Maple Shade, held monthly election of "room officers." They are: Bible devotionist, Patricia Rebeck; housekeepers, Margaret McFarland, Shirley Caswell; milkmen, Russell Rogge, David Bowker; yard clean-up, basket passing, Raymond Eckert, Joseph Trendler; "movie" assistants, Anthony Quil, David Weidman, Robert Wallace, James Marra.

These helpers will "serve" for the month of January, then new officers will be elected. No person may hold the same office more than once during a school year. This encourages all to assume responsibility.

At Edgely primary school, pupils returned from the holidays to find freshly waxed and polished tile floors a perfect setting for rhythmic activities. As pupils spontaneously swing into action in their dancing socks, favorite records are played. Among these are: Ice Skating is Nice Skating; Rainy Day (of which the tap song was much employed); Tales from The Vienna Woods; Blue Danube Waltz, and The Skaters' Waltz.

The first grade of the Edgely primary school held a toy show on January 5th. Invitations were written to the other three groups so that all could share in the dolls, cars, trucks and other interesting toys that Santa had left. Each child demonstrated his toy to the visitors.

Will Aid Veterans To File Bonus Applications

At a meeting of the bonus committee of Chester W. Terchon Post, V. F. W., held in the post home, Sunday, plans were made to help all veterans, whether members of a veterans post or not, to file applications for Pennsylvania State Bonus.

Some of the plans made are as follows: Should applications become available this week, 10 or more stenographers and two notaries public have volunteered to sit at the Terchon Post Home, Saturday and Sunday from eight a. m. to five p. m., to file applications. This is a courtesy of the Terchon Post to all veterans and is absolutely free—no charge.

Should applications not be available; this week, the same plans will be carried out the following week-end. Applications will also be available to those who wish to file individually. All next of kin who wish to file for deceased veterans' payments are asked to contact Thomas Stewart, Sr., Iredell apartments, 1118 Radcliffe street (phone Bristol 4035). Stewart is service officer of Terchon Post and will have necessary forms, and help all desiring help in filing next-of-kin claims.

Terchon Post, immediately upon receiving applications, states it will advertise such in The Bristol Courier to notify all veterans.

BRISTOL TEAMS TO MEET BENSELEM AT BENSELEM

The second Lower Bucks County School League game of the 1949-50 season will be played tonight on the Bensalem High School Court as the Owls play host to Bristol High in varsity and junior varsity games. Opening tap-off will take place at 7:30 o'clock.

The games were originally scheduled to be played in Bristol but due to the installing of the new bleachers in the Bristol "gym," it was decided to transfer the games to Cornwells Heights. Bensalem repays the visit on the night of February 3.

In the only circuit game played thus far this season, Bristol tabbed a triumph over Pennsbury High to place it on top of the loop which consists of four teams: Bristol, Morrisville, Bensalem, and Pennsbury.

Bristol's record to date is three victories and two losses while Coach "Johnny" Messenger's Owls have won two out of three. Bristol has beaten the Alumni, St. James of Chester, and Pennsbury and dropped verdicts to Reading Central Catholic and Overbrook. Bensalem has won over Lower Moreland and Langhorne and dropped a decision to Southampton.

Coach Jerry Bloom, of the Warriors, was elated at the manner in which his players came back in the second half of the Pennsbury tilt after a rather disgusting first half. The Warriors made but eight points in the first half of the game with the Falcons but showed a vast improvement in scoring 34 points during the second half playing.

Coach Bloom is still sticking to his starting array of Joe Pindar, "Bill" Condit, Frank Rich, Frank Barbetta, and "Vic" Cauti. Coach Messenger's starting five will most likely be composed of: "Bobby" Whitfield, "Johnny" Bowman, "Walt" Smith, "Eddie" Oliver, and "Al" Bader.

In the Junior Varsity tilt, Coach Harry McClister's five will be seeking its sixth victory of the season against one defeat. That loss was inflicted by the Alumni quintet. The McClistermen have garnered triumphs over Pennsbury, Overbrook, Reading Catholic, Bristol Township, and Langhorne.

Bristol travels to upper Merion on Friday night while Bensalem plays Pennsbury at home in a Lower Bucks Game.

SPORT NOTES

Eugene and LeRoy Lynch, the twins who play with Tullytown in the Bristol Basketball League, are confusing to the officials, scorers, and fans because they look so much alike. To make matters a little worse, one wears a 6 on his jersey and the other, a 9.

Several of the managers of the teams in the circuit are complaining on the new two-minute rule which is causing so much commotion throughout the country. An attempt may be made to do away with the rule at the next meeting of the league.

An article in one of the Philadelphia papers brought back memories to many of the old-time basketball fans here. The article listed Harry Hough as one of the best players of the Philadelphia area for the past 50 years. The article listed Hough as a streak of lightning only five feet six inches tall and mentioned the fact that he first played with Bristol in the old National League, the first pro wheel in existence.

Many of the old-timers of this section knew Hough and his mates and practically all claim that Bristol was the best team along the eastern seaboard. A Bristolian by the name of Waters is also said to have played on the team.

Local fans are anxiously awaiting to see the Bristol High-Allentown High game. Allentown is still classed as one of the best high school teams in the eastern section of the P. I. A. A. and recently handed Reading Catholic a lacing.
